

Beetle

Shoshana Levenson

Medium: Acrylic paint on glass

Many books and movies describe an imaginary world with exotic plants and animals unlike our own. However, I am constantly in awe of the plants and animals that really exist on our planet. We do not have to create a fantasy world to experience magic, we must simply open our eyes to nature. Each tree has a unique character, each leaf is filled with a thousand colors, and each insect is a universe of its own. My paintings are an attempt to capture the magic we take for granted.

Bio: I am a life-long, multi-media artist with a passion for using any surface as a canvas – 2D, 3D, still or living – and transforming people’s energy, emotions and everyday experience with my art. To date I have specialized in traditional 2D illustration, portrait work, and larger-scale 3D decorative and found art projects, from personal items to coolers, ceramics, furniture, murals, and wall painting. My go-to media are: Prismacolor pencils, oil and acrylic paints, ceramic glazes and collage. I will be graduating from Virginia Tech in May.